Introduction and background

WHG is Scotland's largest RSL covering the City of Glasgow. It is part of the Wheatley Group - Scotland's leading housing, care and property management organisation. In addition to these organisations, the Group also entered into a joint venture in April 2017 with City Building Glasgow.

As the largest landlord in Scotland, we recognise the crucially important role we have in ensuring our communities are calm and peaceful places to live. Your Home, Your Community, Your Future, our 2021-26 five-year strategy, identifies that feeling safe and secure in their home and community is one of the most important priorities for our customers. All parts of the Group have a shared commitment to improving not just homes but the lives of those in our communities.

As a Group we are nationally and internationally recognised for defining excellence and have an outstanding track record in delivering sector leading standards of service and innovating in all fields in which we operate.

We are already regarded as sector leading in our approach to anti-social behaviour. Our Community Improvement Partnership (CIP) in Glasgow broke new ground in close and effective working between Wheatley staff, police and the fire service. The CIP influences partner priorities and facilitates joint working and the sharing of data across the different organisations resulting in improved services for our communities. It covers a range of inter-related areas including homelessness, allocations and group protection as well as anti-social behaviour.

We have established a holistic approach to key services that our customers need through the creation of our Wheatley 360 service. It brings together housing, environmental and support staff with police to deliver a seamless personalised approach across a comprehensive range of 'wrap-around' services that provide a life-line for our customers.

We know from our customers that anti-social behaviour plays a major part in whether they are happy in their home and neighbourhood, whether they feel safe as well as how satisfied they are with us as a landlord. This can be true whether it is serious, high level crime or issues relating to factors such as noise. Our priority will therefore always be to resolve and reduce anti-social behaviour so that our customers can live peacefully. We will use enforcement wherever necessary to achieve that aim. Our customers will be at the centre of helping us to identify the issues that matter to them and telling us when we have resolved them.

Our experience shows us that there is a great deal of benefit to tackling some of the root causes of anti-social behaviour while continuing to use enforcement as required. This means working towards prevention wherever possible. This can be done in a variety of ways including early intervention before matters escalate, helping neighbours to understand one another and through an empathetic approach to the vulnerabilities and trauma many victims and perpetrators have already experienced in their lives. Developments we have already put in place include new and ground breaking policies around domestic abuse, sex offenders, hate crime together with child and adult protection.

This approach helps us to avoid a repeat cycle of enforcement and intervention which does not resolve the problem. It provides a firm basis for robust enforcement action where our efforts to change behaviour do not work. Enforcement will continue to be a key resource, for example where the nature of the behaviour is very serious and having a significant impact on the community, where the perpetrator shows no inclination to engage with help or where that help does not succeed and the community is being detrimentally affected.

Our new Framework will take these developments to the next level, accelerating the creation of calm and peaceful communities where people are proud to live. We have set a challenging target that by 2026 over 70% of our customers live in neighbourhoods we classify as peaceful. It will also support many of the other key aims in the strategy. These include the increase in the number of homeless households we house – many of these are likely to be vulnerable or have suffered trauma so our approach will help ensure that these households settle while maintaining stable communities. It will also help support the increasing focus on preventing homelessness from occurring in the first place by supporting vulnerable households who might otherwise have become homeless as a result of either perpetrating or being impacted by ASB.

Customers will co-create our approaches and priorities using our new customer engagement framework “Stronger voices, stronger communities”. Our new operating model, developed to support our Strategy, is based on highly skilled staff who can empower customers to get the services and support they require. We will increasingly look to digital and easy access approaches so that people can quickly tell us what they want us to hear. In turn we can then respond effectively and quickly while ensuring that no-one is left behind where they do not have digital skills.

This Framework will embed our approach to anti-social behaviour across all areas of the Group. Our aim is that all our staff will have an understanding of anti-social behaviour and the skills to help customers take the first steps to resolution. We will work with our customer facing staff to ensure that they have the training they need to deliver this aim. Training will apply across all services including the customer service centre, housing officers, concierge and care staff so that they can respond well to anti-social behaviour and can understand underlying issues which may be relevant.

Our approach is laid out within this Framework under five distinct themes. These are:

Prevention;
Early and Effective Intervention;
Asset Based Approach;
Changing Lives and
Enforcement.

Our Organisation

By being part of a group structure, WHG customers have unrivalled access to expertise and resources across housing, homelessness, care, support, advice, training, volunteering and employment. The relevant group members are:

Wheatley Homes Glasgow, Scotland's largest social landlord, has more than 42,000 affordable homes in Glasgow. WHG works closely with Glasgow Police Division and the Glasgow City Council Multi Agency Tasking & Coordinating Group to tackle anti-social behaviour. We are also represented on Glasgow's Strategic Community Planning and Safe Glasgow Groups.

Glasgow, as Scotland's largest city, has the highest proportion of our anti-social behaviour. The proportion of ASB incidents reported to us in WHG is broadly in line with its proportion of stock and accounts for almost 80% of our cases. This is often concentrated in areas of high deprivation – in 2019 nearly half of Glasgow's population lived in areas identified as amongst the 20% of most deprived communities in Scotland. Almost a quarter of the most deprived zones in Scotland are to be found in Glasgow.

Wheatley 360 is the wraparound support division changing lives from every angle. Its role is at the heart of making our communities safer and helping people to settle in their homes. It encompasses the Community Improvement Partnership who work with seconded officers from Police Scotland. This has demonstrated the effectiveness of joint working and knowledge sharing across housing and police. Our anti-social behaviour team work closely with communities and households impacted by or perpetrating anti-social behaviour to provide advice, support and resolution. Concierges and neighbourhood environmental teams provide a local and visible service. They keep our communities clean, tidy and provide a friendly face. Our Think Yes approach allows them to do much more – helping our customers where they most need assistance. W360 also includes the homelessness and allocations teams which will create an important synergy as we help people to settle in resilient neighbourhoods.

Wheatley Foundation invests over £3million annually on improving the life opportunities of disadvantaged people in Wheatley's communities which includes funding our Home Comforts and Eat Well services to customers experiencing poverty. It provides jobs, training and apprenticeship opportunities to many of our customers. These opportunities have given customers with some of the most challenging histories opportunities, optimism and better life chances.

Building on Our Success

The Community Improvement Partnership (CIP) was first established in 2010 by WHG, Strathclyde Police and Strathclyde Fire and Rescue. In 2017 we undertook a strategic review of our CIP and created a brand new operating model.

As the CIP has developed the benefits of closer links with a range of services became clearer. It became apparent that there were overlaps in the knowledge and services required for some customers who were homeless, for those suffering from or perpetrating ASB and in relation to protection and safety issues such as domestic abuse and vulnerable adults.

As a result, in 2018 the Scottish Justice Secretary, Humza Yousaf, launched our new holistic approach - Wheatley 360. Its focus is to deliver a more seamless, personalised approach across a comprehensive range of 'wrap-around' services that provide a life-line for our customers whilst improving their safety, wellbeing and resilience. The CIP sits at the centre of this service providing core services and insight in relation to safety and vulnerability.

As part of the development of Wheatley 360 we have brought together housing, environmental and support staff from the organisation with our CIP police and fire officers to tackle everything from antisocial behaviour and fire safety to fly-tipping, graffiti and food and fuel poverty. Services are co-designed by our staff and our customers to address the underlying causal issues to ensure that vulnerable tenants are provided with sustainable solutions that enable them to live safely, whilst enjoying their homes and creating thriving and sustainable communities.

The following unique examples are just some of the ways we are currently tackling and preventing anti-social behaviour:

Dedicated Specialist Resources

We reviewed the way we deployed our seconded policing team using detailed analytics and feedback from our customers and staff. This led to the creation of a two shift police team increasing our coverage at critical times by almost 300%.

A new Police Information and Intelligence Support Unit was created to support the new two team operating model and to ensure our frontline staff received the most up to date police information that was critical to resolving their antisocial behaviour investigations. In the last twelve months this new team have managed more than 2,600 information requests from front line staff, proactively disclosed over 600 incidents of ASB and have processed more than 1,300 community information and intelligence reports. In the past it could take up to four weeks to get disclosure information from local policing.

The CIP's high profile position within Police Scotland ensures that we are always in the fortunate position to recruit the most experienced and best qualified officers from across the country. For example, our current team of officers has the following skill sets: a hate crime champion, crime prevention & architectural liaison officer, community information and intelligence gathering specialists, community and youth engagement champions, domestic abuse investigators, public order specialists and behavioural detection trained officers. In addition, all our supervisors are trained police incident officers who are able to lead and manage serious incidents and complex investigations.

Our police officers' specialist knowledge is used every day across to support both our customers and staff whether a crime prevention officer is assisting our new build CoE or our hate crime champion is advising our Group Protection Team. Our ability to deploy this specialist resource anywhere across Glasgow is a unique ability and has brought many successes including the arrest of 2 fire starters in Glasgow.

Partnership Links

The CIP have a unique relationship with Police Scotland through our seconded police team. The CIP Management Team meet monthly with Police Scotland's Partnership Development Manager who is part of the newly created Partnerships, Prevention & Community Well Being Division. This provides unparalleled access to additional support services and national resources. A recent example of this is the support the division are providing including an additional intervention and patrols within the Wynford Estate in Maryhill where there were increased incidents of ASB..

Innovation & New Technology

Our CIP Team are empowered to develop, test and deliver innovative and collaborative changes to suit emerging threats and provide the right mix of services to meet our customer's needs. A recent example of this was the decision to purchase the Noise App, an innovative digital way for our customers to record and report noisy neighbours in a safe way that is compliant with data protection regulations. This will have a particularly positive impact on an issue that now represents more than 50% of customer complaints.

We are also at the forefront of working with a major software company to develop the optimum antisocial behaviour, domestic abuse and vulnerability case management platform that will revolutionise the way we record, report and resolve complex cases relating to antisocial behaviour and vulnerability.

We are collaborating with Police Scotland and the Scottish Community Safety Network to bring to Scotland for the first time an innovative, secure, digital platform 'Community View', This will enable the us to gain a real-time understanding of opinions from customers about our deployments and the wrap around services we are providing. Local engagement has been critical to the success of the CIP and this and other similar developments will take our digital partnership with our customers to the next level.

Anti-social behaviour

Our Antisocial Behaviour Interventions & Preventions Team (ASBIP Team) consists of 15 members of staff who are all highly skilled and trained in effectively investigating and managing the most serious/complex and persistent types of antisocial behaviour across Glasgow. The team utilise their skills in adopting a collaborative, problem solving approach to tackling antisocial behaviour, whilst engaging fully with all parties to understand and provide the most appropriate support and guidance.

The teams' primary focus is to work with colleagues and partners to deliver effective intervention and prevention focussed services that seek to support and address the causal factors of ASB, whilst also support those affected by it. The ASBIP Team also provide invaluable support to the WHG front-line team, specifically our Housing Officers, in offering guidance and support to assist them in their day-to-day role in managing ASB.

Our ASBIP Officers are all highly skilled in preparing cases to be lodged into court where cases cannot be resolved and enforcement is required. They will lead evidence on behalf of the organisation, whilst representing our customers and communities.

Unique Approach to CIP Deployments

The creation of our CIP Operating Model (Customer REASSURES) has ensured that we have continued to develop our understanding of the issues that negatively impact on the safety and well-being of our customers and communities. We have adapted our approach in line with changes across the world and locally in our communities. This meant that, during the pandemic, we continued to be visible and accessible to our customers.

Our new approach involves operating in both the physical and virtual environments increasingly extending our presence into the digital world. It makes strong use of data analytics to inform priorities. For example, the data we now collect has shown us that the majority of complaints are around noise related issues and that this has been exacerbated during the Covid-19 restrictions. These complaints are a low priority for police but have a major impact on our customers. Our interventions are now designed to have a focus on noise issues, alongside other issues identified by our customers. In addition, our data shows us where there is high incidence of ASB, and the nature of it. This enables us to target intervention at communities suffering the most, or seeing a sudden increase in incidents, working with residents to tackle the issues that matter most to them. Our early work in this area has shown the major positive impact that can be achieved within our communities

Our approach to tackling and preventing antisocial behaviour has delivered sustained change and improvements in a number of communities across the Glasgow as can be seen from some of the results achieved since the introduction of our new operating model:

- In Blairdardie, WHG a CIP deployment led to a 44% reduction in customer reported antisocial behaviour including a 51% reduction in noise, 62% reduction in violence and a 13% in disorder. Our 6-month review post deployment highlighted a further improved and sustained reduction of 32% in customer reported antisocial behaviour.
- Whilst in Govan a CIP deployment achieved similar overall results but also a particularly striking 60% reduction in youth related antisocial behaviour. This was one of our communities' top priorities. This performance resulted in the Govan Ward being removed from the City's, Multi Agency, Tasking and Coordinating Groups top priorities for the first time in three years. Our approach also received praise from the Scottish Justice Secretary Humza Yousaf and was subsequently awarded Cash Back for Communities funding which has been used to support much needed youth outreach work.
- Our most recent deployment to Wyndford achieved a 26% reduction in customer reported incidents of antisocial behaviour, a 30% reduction in disorder and a 54% reduction in violence. A focus on the customer priority of drug dealing led to 14 drug dealers being arrested with over 6kg of drugs in total recovered after 5 house searches. This is the first ever deployment that was based on our Group Strategic priority of creating 'Peaceful' communities. The deployment continued until all five data zones incorporating our 1,500 homes had moved from being merely safe to calm and peaceful communities. The comments below were made by local customers and partners:

"It is this level of joined up working that will inspire and nurture connections within the community" - Head of Wyndford Nursery following CIP actions in relation to threats and ASB.

"The increased police presence can be felt, you can see the difference, it's like back to when we first moved in and had community police officers" - Elderly WHG resident to Housing Officer.

"I now appreciate that my actions are unacceptable and I am trying my best to change my behaviour" – Anonymous perpetrator of noise, following package based CIP police interactions and warnings (no further calls to date)

“This is an excellent partnership which is having a great impact on the Wyndford area” - Local Councillor and WHG Resident, Chair of Safe Glasgow Group

“In what has been a challenging time, our colleagues at CIP have been an invaluable resource to the team. It’s great to see the benefits this partnership has brought to Wyndford.” - Locality Housing Director, WHG

Our approaches to tackling crime and antisocial behaviour have been widely recognised across the Country. This includes the Scottish Government’s Divert & Deter, Serious and Organised Taskforce recognising the CIP operating model as best practice – resulting in a delegation from the Home Office visiting us. Police Scotland’s Partnerships Prevention & Wellbeing Division have recognised the CIP Operating Model and promote our approach to their other partners. They regularly bring visiting forces from across the world to showcase the work they do in partnership with us. Two recent examples are the visit of the Deputy Chief Officer from Toronto and of 20 Senior Officers from Beijing.

Our Vision to End Antisocial Behaviour

Strategic vision: Our Antisocial Behaviour Prevention and Mitigation Framework will create calm, peaceful and sustainable communities where people are proud to live.

Our aim: To build on our sector leading anti-social behaviour work through embedding a strong prevention led approach across all our services, directed by our customers and supported by strong digital services and robust enforcement where it is needed.

We will deliver this aim by successfully achieving the following five key outcomes:

This structured approach to anti-social behaviour focuses on ensuring that our customers will be empowered to make their own choices about the services they want, be properly equipped to do things for themselves and involved in the design of products and services from start to finish. It will support digital provision of services where these are appropriate, recognising that it is important that “no-one is left behind”. In particular, we recognise that those who are living in socially deprived communities may have particular challenges in gaining access to or using digital services.

Success will be dependent on strong relationships with our customers and communities. They must feel confident to report issues and information to us and our partners, knowing we will use it effectively for prevention and enforcement. Our ability to provide quality resolutions to issues and to respond to customer feedback will be vital to this.

Our “confidence cycle” will be an important element of this approach. This helps increase people’s willingness to provide information and report issues. In turn, the information we receive can be used to target crime, reducing incidence, and creating a more peaceful community. This then further encourages the community to have confidence in sharing information with housing officers and police to create further benefit.

We have created a model to define communities as safe, calm and aiming to have 70% of our communities meeting the definition of “peaceful” as shown in the matrix below.

		Public Reported Incidents of ASB
		Low Volume and Stable/Improving	Low Volume yet Emerging Deterioration	Low Volume yet Sustained/Progressive deterioration	High Volume yet Stable/Improving	High Volume yet Emerging Deterioration	High Volume yet Emerging Deterioration
Deprivation (SIMD )	Levels of affluence and Improving	Peaceful	Peaceful	Peaceful	Peaceful	Calm	Calm
	Levels of affluence yet Worsening	Peaceful	Peaceful	Peaceful	Calm	Calm	Safe
	Levels of deprivation yet Improving	Peaceful	Peaceful	Calm	Calm	Safe	Safe
	Levels of deprivation and Worsening	Peaceful	Peaceful	Calm	Calm	Safe	Safe

This Framework recognises that preventing antisocial behaviour requires a partnership of many organisations. We will continue to support local authorities and Police Scotland in their statutory role to prevent anti-social behaviour. Our people are supported and trained to think innovatively, to think yes together with their customers and to provide leadership in digital transformation. We will use this innovative style to help provide thinking which challenges and encourages a new approach to services. We will work with partners across the country to share innovation and best practice to deliver our aims.

Excellence is embedded in our DNA, so we will build on the innovative approaches that we have used to date. We will continue to push towards outstanding service, challenging our performance and outcomes in each area. As part of our new relationship with customers, we will measure this in different and more stretching ways, looking to further improve the aspects of service which matter most to customers.

Voice of the customer

In line with our Strategy, the process of refining and developing our services in relation to anti-social behaviour will be led by our customers. WHG customers already influence services through a wide range of engagement processes. Our new Engagement Framework “Stronger Voices, Stronger Communities” puts customers at the heart of decision making. This is particularly important for customers and communities experiencing anti-social behaviour where a sense of powerlessness to effect change can exacerbate the situation.

Our new approach ensures customers are at the heart of planning and decision making. This will help to replace that sense of powerlessness with confidence that change can be achieved. We know that this engagement will also have a powerful effect in building resilience in our communities.

The diagram below shows some examples of how this will work in relation to our anti-social behaviour services.

This Framework will take engagement to a new level for those customers who have experienced or are experiencing the impacts of anti-social behaviour. We recognise that our customers may have many issues in their lives and will ensure that our engagement approach makes it as easy as possible for people to talk to us and to become involved in directing service decisions. Our partners will also be working to engage with customers so we will work with them to ensure maximum joint benefit from each engagement.

The diagram below sets out the key pillars of our approach.

Our engagement approach will mean that customers direct our approach across a range of areas. It will include:

- Identifying the priority issues in their own community;
- Develop the best ways to strengthen neighbourliness in their areas;
- Help empower their community and others around them to take control of situations and build capacity
- Engaging with us on the when, how and where of our anti-social behaviour work; and
- Directing support received from us so that it works best for the customer.

National Context

In terms of national policy, the 'Promoting Positive Outcomes: Working Together to Prevent Antisocial Behaviour in Scotland' framework (published in 2009) remains the Scottish Government's most recent antisocial behaviour policy document. When developing antisocial behaviour strategies, and looking at new approaches to service design and interventions, it still provides the strategic direction for Local Authorities, Housing Associations and other statutory partners to follow.

Its' principal aim is to prevent antisocial behaviour from happening in the first place by:

- Encouraging agencies to work together more effectively;
- Involving communities more closely in developing local solutions; and
- By communicating positive, evidence-based messages about our people and places.

These aims are still relevant today and both our Strategy and this Framework are committed to prevention, community involvement, positive messaging and joint working. Our Framework builds on these by taking the next steps. These include developing customer control and real co-creation of services, not just consultation processes and seeking to influence our partner agencies to adopt a similar approach.

The Scottish Government recently commissioned the Scottish Community Safety Network to undertake some up to date research. This research, which was published in July 2020, aimed to provide an updated picture of antisocial behaviour in Scotland. Some of the key findings were:

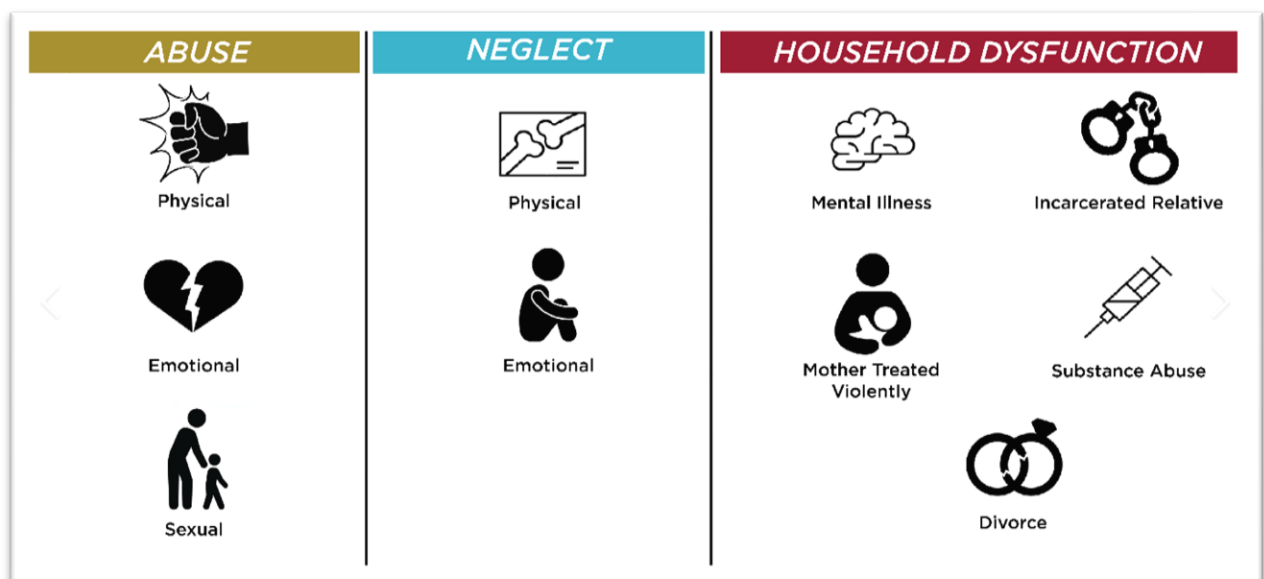

- Levels of ASB have decreased over the past 10 years and the public have noticed this decline in their areas. 29% of adults in 2017/18 thought ASB was common in their area which is down from 46% in 2009/10;
- Those living in the most deprived areas, in socially rented housing and in large urban areas, as well as younger people, are more likely to perceive ASB issues in their area;
- While it is an improving picture, there is still a strong link between ASB and deprivation, possibly as a result of more densely populated communities and a lack of community facilities;
- Perceptions of ASB and who engages in it are often inaccurate and influenced by stereotypes;
- Court action for ASB has decreased over the last 10 years, reflecting a shift from treating ASB as an issue of law and order that requires sanctions to one of addressing perpetrator vulnerability to prevent ASB.

In recent years a growing body of research has directly linked the prevalence and type of antisocial behaviour in our communities to issues such as childhood adversity/victimisation and poverty.

International research has shown that a significant number of adult perpetrators of certain crimes and antisocial behaviour have experienced high levels of childhood trauma and maltreatment. These are commonly known as Adverse Childhood Experiences or ACEs. This body of evidence is also reflected within Scottish statistics where we know that:

- 45% of adult prisoner survey respondents reported that they had been physically abused in their homes as a child;
- 61% of adult prisoner survey respondents had been bullied at school or somewhere else; and
- 56% of young people in custody said they had been sworn at, humiliated or put down by an adult in their own home.

The ten most commonly measured ACEs are categorized as follows:

Drug and alcohol misuse is a major issue across Scotland. Levels of misuse tend to be higher in areas of social deprivation but it is an issue throughout Glasgow. We know that drug and alcohol dependencies can increase the likelihood of anti-social behaviour. Evidence suggests that in many cases the root cause of people becoming addicted to drugs and alcohol can be traced back to traumatic experiences in their childhood. Being able to support and treat customers to help them overcome or reduce use should be a key part of limiting ASB.

To do this we will need our customers to have quick and easy access to the support services they need, delivered by our partners in health and local authorities. We will help ensure that our customers' voices are heard by the organisations responsible for providing specialist support and we will work in partnership with those organisations to ensure that services are as seamless as possible. Our training and employability options form a key part of supporting customers with substance misuse issues. Providing hope and a purpose in life can help avoid a spiral of decline in misuse and help those recovering from addiction.

We have seen the impact that embedding specialists within the Wheatley 360 teams has delivered in areas such as domestic abuse and suicide prevention. We will expand this approach to work with our Glasgow City Council and health and social care partnership colleagues in relation to addictions. In addition, we will look to bring learning from substance abuse professionals into the training that we will give WHG staff.

Mental health issues are growing in prevalence in society. It is likely that the covid-19 pandemic will only increase this trend. Our experience is that issues can often arise where our customers have low level mental health issues. These are often not sufficient for them to meet the criteria for specialist support. Despite this, our customers can struggle to live safely in a home and some will also behave in an anti-social way as a result. Using our care expertise and strong partnerships, we will seek to find ways to increase the support to these customers.

Increasingly our partners are developing a similar approach and our joint objectives will support the achievement of the best results for customers. A key outcome for Police Scotland is “To protect people effectively, Police Scotland will evolve, sharpening its focus on keeping people safe from harm, whilst embracing innovative technologies and partnerships. Police Scotland will continue to be a key contributor to local joint planning and delivery, as well as to national cross-sectoral partnerships, helping drive a shift to prevention and early intervention across services.”

Similarly, the Scottish Fire and Rescue Service has a strategic outcome to “work in partnership with communities and others in the public, private and third sectors, on prevention, protection and response, to improve the safety and well-being of people throughout Scotland”.

Prevalence of crime and anti-social behaviour

For much of the last 10 years there has been a general decline in the number of recorded crimes in Scotland. Between 2018-19 and 2019-20, crimes recorded by the police in Scotland remained almost unchanged, increasing by less than 1% from 246,480 to 246,516. The 2019-20 figures include 1,681 new crimes recorded under the Domestic Abuse (Scotland) Act 2018, following its enactment on the 1st April 2019. The recording of crime remains at one of the lowest levels seen since 1974.

We know that ASB levels have increased significantly during the pandemic. The Police have recorded an increase in ASB issues of during lockdown of approximately 35% in Glasgow. Most of the increase has been related to noise and the impact of people being at home far more.

Our CIP has a well-established information sharing approach that provides us with detailed intelligence on all antisocial and violent behaviour in or around WHG homes. This information can be broken down by Local Housing Office or ‘patch’.

The data we now have has already allowed us to develop services which target key issues. For example, our increased understanding of domestic abuse issues has allowed us to create the Group Protection Framework with a range of increased supports for victims and actions against perpetrators. Our data has shown that noise issues are the cause of the majority of complaints. These tend not to be a major focus for police work but do have a significant impact on our customers' wellbeing. We have developed a number of strategies to deal with noise issues which will be expanded during the course of this Framework.

The changing nature of crime

Serious and organised crime (SOC) affects more UK citizens, more often, than any other national security threat. It has a daily impact on citizens, public services, businesses, institutions, national reputation and infrastructure. SOC is estimated to cost the UK economy at least £37 billion a year, with this cost increasing year on year. This figure is highly likely to be a significant underestimate, particularly in relation to areas such as fraud.

The shifting demographic in Glasgow has a major influence on how public services must work together to protect the most vulnerable people in our communities. Adult concern calls to Police Scotland have risen by 13.7% in the last two years, with a significant proportion of calls relating to vulnerability.

Advancing technology gives offenders new tools to commit and hide their crimes. Today's criminals can sell drugs, share indecent images of children, or hack into national infrastructure from anywhere in the world, communicating covertly through encrypted services and moving illicit finances at speed. Notable trends in the past year have related to the criminal use of encryption tools, the dark web and virtual currencies.

Advances in technology have also led to an increased threat of cybercrime, the use of technology in recorded cases of fraud has increased significantly in the past year, and 67% of stalking / harassment crimes now have an element of digital enablement.

Child sexual abuse and exploitation (CSAE) remains a high-volume offence, with recorded instances increasing across Scotland. It covers a range of crimes, from offending in the family context, to generation of indecent images, online grooming, blackmail and extortion.

These changes in digital and online behaviour have a significant effect on our communities. Disputes between neighbours can often be rapidly escalated via social media making it harder to resolve. The advent of social media has also vastly increased the incidence of outings of sexual offenders (accurately or otherwise), again causing disruption in our communities across Glasgow. While the crime element of this trend is dealt with by the Police we increasingly have to support our communities and deal with the outcomes.

Our approach will take account of these changing trends. It will seek to ensure that our communities are alert to new forms of crime and new methods of committing crime so that they can protect themselves from these. Our approaches will ensure that we take a whole community view, seeking to minimise the disruptive impact on our customers.

Our Strategic & Operational Response

Prevention

Our Aim:

Our collaborative and targeted prevention and protection activities are improving community safety and wellbeing and supporting the development of sustainable communities.

We know that feeling safe and secure in their home, and community, is extremely important to our customers and this in turn directly affects local demand and community stability. To successfully deliver this goal, customers must be at the centre of our work so that we are clear about what their concerns are and what they need. We must also build on our existing good relationships to work collaboratively with Glasgow City Council and other key partner organisations, such as Police Scotland, to develop sector leading antisocial behaviour prevention services. These services will protect, develop and support our communities to reach their full potential and become peaceful places where customers are proud to live. In addition to tackling and preventing crime and anti-social behaviour we will develop new and innovative ways to prevent, disrupt and respond to ever more challenging and complex problems by enhancing our use of digital tools and tactics.

Our four pillars of prevention are:

Community Prevention

We will focus on the causal factors of antisocial behaviour at a community level and introduce prevention focussed services designed to change the conditions that influence antisocial behaviour in our communities

Developmental Prevention

We will focus on interventions designed to inhibit the development of antisocial behaviour in individuals by targeting risk. Our support and other interventions will be designed to lower risks and provide life chances which increase a sense of community

Situational Prevention

We will focus on physical crime prevention and interventions designed to reduce the opportunities for antisocial behaviour and to increase the risk and difficulty of committing antisocial acts in the first place

Criminal Justice Prevention

If our prevention and early intervention approaches don't have the desired effect or where there is an imminent and serious risk to the community, we will use all legal measures to prevent individuals continuing to commit antisocial acts

Prevention – Our key measures

- Create a baseline for reporting in Streetwise post- covid to allow us to set informed targets for levels of reporting in each year.
- 100% of customers who request home safety and security consultations receive these
- 20% of priority neighbourhoods have a community advocate by the end of the pilot process
- % of customers satisfied with the digital reporting system (baseline to be determined)

Prevention – case study

Within our Community Improvement Partnership, Police Team we have Scotland's best qualified Crime Prevention Officer. This newly acquired skill set was recently requested by a Glasgow Locality Director who requested a detailed Crime Prevention report with recommendations on how to impact on local vandalism, graffiti and drug dealing in a particular street within their area. The report was presented within a week and made a number of recommendations which were then progressed by the local housing officer. A Problem Solving meeting was arranged and chaired by the Housing Officer and involving local police and other relevant partners. One of the recommendations involved the more proactive use of public space CCTV. The action was progressed as a matter of urgency and led to the identification through facial recognition software of a person involved in drug dealing in this community. This focus on prevention and use of technology is having a preventative impact on local crime and antisocial behaviour.

Early Intervention

Our Aim:

Our focussed early and effective interventions will divert people away from being involved in antisocial behaviour.

We know that early and effective intervention has an important role to play in preventing crime and anti-social behaviour occurring in the first place.

The early identification of the characteristics that may lead to a customer or community becoming anti-social enables us to provide bespoke wrap around services. These can dovetail with our Wheatley Foundation work to reduce social exclusion and improve outcomes for disadvantaged communities. Characteristics we will particularly focus on include childhood trauma, vulnerability and current or previous drug and alcohol abuse.

We are developing predictive analytical approaches to identify communities that are susceptible to increased levels of crime and anti-social behaviour. Artificial intelligence will mine our rich data to support our frontline teams, spot trends and empower us to deliver personalised customer services where they are most needed.

We will draw on our care expertise to mainstream effective tenancy support approaches into the skill sets of our customer facing staff, to help our tenants sustain their homes and lead their own lives, this will include experiential learning around the impacts of substance misuse, Adverse Childhood Experiences and mental health. We will work closely with our strategic partners acknowledging that keeping people safe and promoting community wellbeing is a shared responsibility.

Our early intervention key measures

- Reduce the number of repeat complaints of ASB by 20%
- Reduce the number of noise nuisance calls customers make to Police by 25%
- 100% of customer facing staff are trauma informed and easily able to identify the characteristics associated with vulnerability
- Our Prosocial Behaviour media campaign is recognised as helpful by staff and customers across the Group

Early intervention – case study

An elderly couple in the North of Glasgow had lived peacefully for years in their end terraced house until the school at the rear of their home was closed. A path ran adjacent to their garden which formerly accessed the school. Over time, the path was not maintained and shrubs and trees began to grow over the path providing a canopy that could not be seen from the road. A group of youths began to congregate, drinking and playing loud music. This led to vandalism and broken bottles being thrown at the gable of our customer's home. After many calls to local police our CIP Team identified the pattern during their analysis of Group antisocial behaviour incidents.

Our customers were visited by the CIP who took time to listen to the concerns of the elderly customers before providing the reassurance that things would start to improve. Over the next few weeks visits and crime prevention surveys were carried out and partners engaged including the police and local authority. The CIP's recommendations were all progressed including removing the shrubbery, replacing broken street lighting, upgrading and repairing the customers fence, engaging with the local youths and providing positive alternatives. The CIP monitored police systems for any incidents at the property and called the couple once a week regardless. Our approach to antisocial behaviour prevention resulted in a heart-warming letter being received from the couple simply stating “Thank you! You have given us our lives back.”

Asset Based Approach

Our Aim:

We will focus on our customer and community assets and strengths in order to build more resilient individuals and communities, driving improvements from the inside out

Our Assets based approach is an integral part of our vision of creating calm and peaceful communities. It will encourage people and communities to come together to achieve positive change using their own knowledge, skills and lived experience of the issues they encounter in their own lives. The most important resource in dealing with anti-social behaviour will be our communities and the people in them. The focus will be on building people's skills and expertise to strengthen the sense of neighbourliness. Physical and virtual locations that we and our partners have in our communities will support this.

We recognise that positive health and social outcomes will not be achieved by maintaining a 'doing to' culture and respect that meaningful social change will only occur when customers and communities have the opportunities and agency to control and manage their own futures. Our assets based approach recognises and builds on a combination of the human, social and physical capital that exists within our local communities.

We will take our award winning Think Yes culture to the next level to introduce Thinking Yes Together, improving the self-reliance of our customers and enhancing digital connectivity. Customers will be able to draw down many of our services easily and reliably at a time and place of their choosing.

Our Asset key measures

- 95% of customers actively engaged in shaping ASB services feel they have played a part in informing decision making
- Increase the number of customers who sign up for our neighbourhood alert system by 25%

Asset based approach – case study

During a recent CIP deployment in the South of Glasgow youth related antisocial behaviour and drunkenness was identified as a top customer priority. The CIP recruited some youth leaders to work with and engage with the local youths. The main focus was to establish what would divert them away from hanging about and causing antisocial behaviour.

The youths unanimously stated that a place to gather that was warm and safe and where they could play online games would be great. The CIP identified an abandoned shop that was still owned by the WHG and applied for community pay back funding to upgrade the shop into a youth club. The local youths were brought into assist with the work.

Late night basketball was also requested. A local youth was trained up as an organiser, flood lights were borrowed from another Wheatley community and a local court was identified. These two projects had a significant positive impact on the local community. Youth related antisocial behaviour reduced by 60%.

Changing Lives

Our Aim:

We will provide our customers with better life choices and chances, creating better lives through education, training and employment opportunities.

By doing this we will build resilience and the ability to support their own communities. These life chances will also help to divert those who have committed or are at most risk of committing crime and antisocial behaviour into more positive pathways.

Almost half of Scotland's most deprived communities are within our Glasgow neighbourhoods. Deprivation reduces life chances and makes life more difficult for households. At WHG, our mission is to make homes and lives better. We will make lives better through a comprehensive range of services. These include specific services such as tenancy support, fuel advice or money advice which help our customers manage in their homes. It also includes a range of opportunities that are uniquely available to WHG customers. As part of this Framework our customers will be given access to a range of training through Wheatley Academies. They can also be given additional help and support to ensure that they can get the most out of these opportunities.

Changing lives is not only about individuals but about communities. Our Strategy and this Framework set out our ambition to make communities stronger. The impact of the Covid-19 pandemic has shown just how much neighbours can help and support each other. We will work to develop this further by helping people to understand the issues that some members of the community face – whether as refugees, through mental health issues, addictions, homelessness or trauma.

Our ideal is that individuals and communities can take the lead in identifying issues and in developing local solutions. We will work to identify local community advocates who will help to support effective communities. The approach will be underpinned by a commitment to support people's ability to live life to the fullest as part of a strong, thriving sustainable community. Our customers will be at the forefront of the development of our services throughout the lifetime of this Framework. These actions will help to develop community resilience and voice, in turn creating neighbourhoods which work together to create strong communities.

Our Changing Lives key measures

- % of vulnerable customers who have tenancy star in place
- % of Wheatley Foundation opportunities taken up by those who have been referred as a result of being impacted by or perpetrating anti-social behaviour
- We will also develop a measure around the uptake of wraparound services

Changing Lives – case study

A young male who was part of a local gang and involved in drunkenness and antisocial behaviour was identified by one of our Environmental Team Leaders. The male was initially encouraged to get involved with the local five a side football game the we organised.

This in turn led to an opportunity to enrol in our “Changing Lives” programme which provided him with training and ultimately a job. The male turned his life around and was even able to put down roots when he was offered a local house.

The young man is now providing W360 services in the very area where he was once a member of a youth gang.

Another great example of what we can deliver in changing chaotic lives into resilient, peaceful ones.

Enforcement

Our Aim:

In the event that our prevention and early intervention approaches have not impacted on antisocial behaviour we will enforce all appropriate and proportionate legal means at our disposal to stop antisocial behaviour occurring

We know that feeling safe and secure in their home, and community, is extremely important to our customers and this, in turn, directly affects community stability and the desire to live in an area. To successfully deliver this goal for our customers we need to work collaboratively with local authorities and other key partner organisations, such as Police Scotland, to develop sector leading antisocial behaviour services. These services will protect, develop and support our communities to reach their full potential and become great places to live.

Instances of antisocial or criminal behaviour, particularly where they become repeated or entrenched, can adversely affect our tenants’ feeling of safety, the quality of the environment and their ability to peacefully enjoy their homes.

We are committed to tackling all reports and forms of antisocial behaviour in an effective manner. Our early intervention and prevention approach, aligned to our Community Improvement Partnership confidence cycle will reduce anti-social behaviour but we will use appropriate and proportionate enforcement action where it is needed. This will be the case where the issues are so severe that they need to be dealt with immediately or where other action is having no effect.

In some cases, we may need to move the perpetrator in order to protect the community. This Framework sets out how we will seek to do this through planned pathways wherever possible. Working with partners, we plan to establish alternative accommodation routes to break a cycle of anti-social behaviour and eviction. This may involve the use of alternative supported or other specialist accommodation or it may simply require a change of location to somewhere where there is more family support or where a fresh start can be made.

Our Enforcement key measures

- 50% increase in submission of community information and intelligence direct to our Police Information and Intelligence Unit

Enforcement – case study

Drug abuse and drug dealing are regularly in our customers' top priorities the CIP were recently asked to support a local housing office to gather information/intelligence that would support an application to evict a tenant who was a well-known drug dealer.

Our CIP Police & ASBIP Team worked tirelessly to try and find a customer willing to speak up to what was going on in their community. The drug dealer had convinced the courts that they had turned their life around and was now a model citizen.

The drug dealing customer was due to be moved into a brand new home.

The CIP Team were able to gather enough information and intelligence to secure three drug search warrants for houses related to the drug dealer.

The subsequent police operation involved over 60 specialist police officers and search dogs. The operation was a huge success with drugs, monies and stolen property being recovered and the drug dealer and associates arrested. The drug dealer was subsequently evicted.

The community leaders were hugely complimentary of the CIP's involvement in ridding their community of the Drug Dealer.

Our approach

Moving forward we aim to future proof and build on the outstanding achievements delivered to date through our new Framework. The Framework is also a key element in the delivery of the WHG strategy. It sets a very clear benchmark for the standard of service our customers should expect over the next 5 years and beyond.

The Framework supports the Strategy in some of the following key ways:

- Creating the detailed approach to delivering peaceful neighbourhoods;
- Improving customer satisfaction with home and neighbourhood through reduced anti-social behaviour and increased resilience within communities;
- Creating the digital platforms for anti-social behaviour which allow customers to self-serve, to engage with us when and where they want and which help us work more efficiently;
- Working across Glasgow to ensure our programmes to build community resilience and increase neighbourliness reach out to those most vulnerable and most excluded; and
- Preventing homelessness by reducing the number of people who need to leave their home either because they perpetrate ASB or because of the impact of such behaviour.

Our approach will require effective partnership working at local community and patch level. No one agency or organisation can tackle antisocial behaviour alone. We will work together with our customers, colleagues in Police Scotland, Scottish Fire and Rescue Service, Glasgow City Council, Health and Social Care Partnership, Community Justice, Social Work and Education. Together we must develop shared outcomes based on joint priorities, local intelligence and customer insight.

The table below shows where the Antisocial Behaviour Framework has significant importance for the delivery of our strategic themes.

Investigating incidents and using our powers

Customers can report antisocial behaviour by phone, e-mail, in writing or in person and will be advised, in all instances, to report criminal behaviour to Police Scotland. As part of this Framework reporting by digital methods will also be available. Whilst recognising that enforcement action needs to be appropriate, proportionate and timely the wellbeing and protection of our tenants and communities will always be at the forefront of our decision making process.

Our approach to the use of enforcement action will be informed by the type and severity of antisocial behaviour that has been reported. In the majority of cases this will have been when a preventative and supportive approach has failed to address the problem but we will move straight to enforcement action if it is deemed necessary for the protection of our tenants and communities.

When required our staff will utilise the various types of legislative powers available to WHG within the Antisocial Behaviour etc. (Scotland) Act 2004, the Housing (Scotland) Act 2001 and the Housing (Scotland) Act 2014 to manage antisocial behaviour, and the perpetrators of such. This will include the use of:

- Referrals for support;
- Acceptable Behaviour Contracts (ABC);
- Unacceptable Behaviour Notices (UBN);
- Mediation (non-legislative);
- Warning Letters (non-legislative);
- Interim Antisocial Behaviour Orders (Interim ASBO);
- Antisocial Behaviour Orders (ASBO);
- Notice of Proceeding for Recovery of Possession (NPRP);
- Eviction Orders; and
- Short Scottish Secure Tenancy.

When investigating cases of antisocial behaviour, we will be fair and firm, remaining impartial and always observing confidentiality. We will take a customer focused approach to tackling antisocial behaviour, working with the complainer and the alleged perpetrator with a view to reaching agreed actions, timescales and ultimately closure. An antisocial behaviour toolkit has been developed for staff to refer to. The toolkit provides detailed guidance on how to manage the five key stages of an antisocial behaviour complaint, ensuring staff manage cases in a consistent and informed manner. These are:

The guiding principles of the toolkit are noted below:

- Listen to complaints and give complainers advice as to what they can do and what they can expect from us;
- Assess and monitor any risk;
- Keep to specified target response times for acknowledging and responding to reports of antisocial behaviour;
- Ensure the emergency and statutory services have been notified where there has been/is a risk to life or safety;
- Discuss the forward process with the complainant, being clear and realistic about potential outcomes and timescales involved;
- Choose from a range of different actions and take action proportionate to the type of antisocial behaviour reported;
- Refer customers to external agencies for support and advice as appropriate;
- Use the Streetwise system to note all reports of antisocial behaviour and manage the case in accordance with good practice and Scottish Social Housing Charter (SSHC) requirements; and
- Keep in regular contact with the complainant and advise how they can record any future incidents, for example using diary sheets.

Customer Agreed Categories & Timescales

Following consultation with our tenants we have defined, categorised and grouped the different types of antisocial behaviour according to their level of seriousness. We have also agreed the following timescales for actioning and resolving complaints of antisocial behaviour.

Category	Definition	Timescales
A	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A conviction or criminal charges of drug dealing (supply or intent to supply) or production of a controlled drug.</li> <li>• Criminal charges relating to firearms.</li> <li>• Criminal behaviour involving serious incidents of violence or threats of violence towards any members of the public.</li> <li>• Serious assault.</li> <li>• Serious harassment.</li> <li>• Hate crimes (racial, sectarian, homophobic, religious, disability etc.).</li> <li>• Serious damage to property including wilful fire-raising.</li> </ul>	Action within 1 working day

Legislation Planning and Guidance

Legal Context

As well as enabling WHG's strategic outcomes, our Antisocial Behaviour Prevention and Mitigation Framework also demonstrates and strengthens our contribution towards a number of the national outcomes contained within the Scottish Government's National Performance Framework. These include national outcomes such as:

- Outcome 2 - We respect, protect and fulfil human rights and live free from discrimination
- Outcome 5 - We live in communities that are inclusive, empowered, resilient and safe
- Outcome 6 - We grow up loved, safe and respected so that we realise our full potential

The Legal Framework

The Antisocial Behaviour etc (Scotland) Act 2004 is the primary legislation for dealing with antisocial behaviour in Scotland. The Act sets out a range of responses made available to Local Authorities and Police Scotland ranging from the requirement of Local Authorities to jointly prepare and produce an antisocial behaviour strategy, to the dispersal of groups, closure of premises, dealing with noise nuisance and the environment as well as the application of Antisocial Behaviour Orders.

This Antisocial Behaviour Prevention and Mitigation Framework has been developed to ensure that we are not only meeting all the legislation and guidance that is pertinent to antisocial behaviour reduction and prevention but exceeding it and setting best practice approaches nationally.

There are a number of additional pieces of legislation which support responses to antisocial behaviour such as:

- Human Rights Act 1998;
- Regulation of Investigatory Powers (Scotland) Act 2000;
- Housing (Scotland) Act 2001;
- Equality Act 2010;
- Housing (Scotland) Act 2010;
- Housing (Scotland) Act 2014; and
- Data Protection Act 2018.

Wheatley Homes Glasgow

The legislative framework that governs how all WHG currently interprets and manage antisocial behaviour is contained within the Housing (Scotland) Act 2014 and the Antisocial Behaviour etc. (Scotland) Act 2004. The 2004 Act states that a person is engaging in antisocial behaviour if they:

- Act in a manner that causes or is likely to cause alarm and distress.
- Pursue a course of conduct that causes or is likely to cause alarm or to distress to at least one person not of the same household as them.

The Housing (Scotland) Act 2014 further enhanced the powers available to WHG for the management of antisocial behaviour. This includes:

- WHG will have the power to convert an existing tenant's Scottish Secure Tenancy (SST) to a Short SST (SSST) or to grant a SSST to a new tenant in cases where there is evidence that the tenant, a member of their household, or a visitor, has been involved in antisocial behaviour in or near their home within the last three years;
- Simplifying the eviction process in cases involving serious antisocial behaviour by allowing WHG to make use of an existing conviction as grounds for possession. The tenant must have been convicted within the last 12 months; and
- Clarifying that WHG can suspend an application for social housing under certain prescribed circumstances.

Scottish Social Housing Charter

The Scottish Social Housing Charter was introduced by the Scottish Government to help improve the quality and value of the services that social landlords provide, and support the Government's long term aim of creating a safer and stronger Scotland.

Outcome 6 of the Scottish Social Housing Charter states that:

“Social landlords, working in partnership with other agencies, help to ensure that:

- Tenants and other customers live in well-maintained neighbourhoods where they feel safe.”

This outcome covers a range of actions that social landlords can take on their own and in partnership with others. It covers action to enforce tenancy conditions on estate management and neighbour nuisance, to resolve neighbour disputes, and to arrange or provide tenancy support where it is needed. It also covers the role of landlords in working with others to tackle antisocial behaviour.

The Scottish Housing Regulator have developed the following indicators to assess how well housing associations are managing complaints of antisocial behaviour and our wider estates:

- Indicator 13: Percentage of tenants satisfied with the landlord's contribution to the management of the neighbourhood they live in; and
- Indicator 15: Percentage of antisocial behaviour cases in the last year which were resolved.

Complaints

Our aim is to get it right first time, however, where there is dissatisfaction with this Framework or its operation, customers can make a complaint. A summary of our Complaints Policy and Procedure is available on our website and in local offices.

Responsibilities

The Managing Director will have overall strategic responsibility and will oversee the successful implementation of the work plan.

Review and Consultation

Our framework will be reviewed regularly to ensure that it continues to be relevant and appropriate in achieving our aims. Partners remain committed to working together to critically review performance, to maintain or improve our current high standards of service delivery. Partners will also seek to develop services that are focused on early intervention and prevention and meet the differing needs of the various communities across Glasgow.
